GlobalDining Application to Support Microsoft's Pocket PC 2002 "Merlin"

Wireless Restaurant Reservation Application Offers Ease of Use, Convenience

GlobalDining, the world's largest, location-based mobile restaurant directory and reservation network today announced its compatibility with Microsoft's Pocket PC 2002. "We expect that the enhanced Pocket PC OS will play a major role in the future of handheld devices and we are pleased that our wireless application will support this important Operating System", said Kelly Corkill, CTO of GlobalDining.

GlobalDining's basic service is free to all restaurant operators who visit www.globaldining.com to register their restaurant.

GlobalDining currently receives more than 75,000 visitors each month and its mobile Internet directory and reservation service is distributed Globally to mobile Internet users through agreements with Motorola, Nokia, SignalSoft, Aspiro and Telespatial.

James Nardulli, GlobalDining CEO added, " Our agreement with Nokia adds to our Global presence." Under the agreement, GlobalDining will provide Nokia's M-Platform with the world's largest restaurant directory that lists over 500,000 restaurants in 40 countries and with wireless, real time reservations.

"We are immensely proud to have been selected by Nokia for this project," stated Nardulli, "Nokia is a leader in the wireless revolution and we look forward to contributing to their success. Adding Nokia to our list of wireless distribution channels brings us one step closer to being the default engine behind the "Dining" link on Mobile devices worldwide."

The GlobalDining Wireless Application will be featured at the SignalSoft Pavilion at the CTIA event in San Diego September 11 thru 13th.
